Dear Chairman Wyden, Chairman Neal, Chairman Casey, and Co-Chair Bonamici:

The Insured Retirement Institute (IRI)¹ writes to express support for the Elder Justice Reauthorization Act of 2021. IRI's 2021 Federal Retirement Security Blueprint called for the enactment of this bill to ensure that the services and programs authorized under the Elder Justice Act (EJA) continue to protect older and vulnerable workers and retirees. The bill would authorize $4 billion for those programs, including $1.4 billion to directly support state and local Adult Protective Services (APS) agencies and $400 million for grants to address and prevent elder abuse and financial exploitation.

Addressing elder abuse and financial exploitation is a national imperative. It costs an estimated $2.9 billion annually² and impacts roughly 1 in 10 older workers and retirees.³ The average loss per financial abuse or exploitation incident is estimated to be $120,000,⁴ a figure that aligns with the average amount workers have saved for retirement.⁵ As such, financial abuse and exploitation can erase a lifetime of savings and leave older and vulnerable workers and retirees in financial ruin. With the older population of our nation expected to double in size to nearly 84 million citizens by 2050,⁶ a concerted effort to combat financial exploitation is welcomed from Congress.

State and local APS agencies are helping to spearhead the fight to prevent and protect against financial abuse and exploitation. Unfortunately, these agencies are often underfunded, leaving them without the resources necessary to investigate and prosecute these crimes fully. Increased costs associated with conducting in-person and digital interactions throughout the COVID-19 pandemic have further stretched the limited resources available to APS agencies. The additional funding authorized by this bill will go a long way in helping APS agencies perform their mission by enabling more investigations, enhanced services, and the purchase of personal protective equipment needed to protect the health of victims and investigators.

The prevention of financial exploitation and the protection of America's older and vulnerable workers and retirees is a top advocacy objective for IRI. As Congress considers legislation to increase funding to investigate and prosecute financial exploitation for older workers and retirees, we would welcome the opportunity to work with you and your staffs to advance the Elder Justice Reauthorization Act of 2021 into law.

IRI thanks you for your leadership in pursuing this legislation. Paul J. Richman
